As the school semester wraps up and summertime is just out of reach, a lot of student work is available to see in the Tampa Bay area. It’s been refreshing checking out the student work here, and seeing more and more exhibition spaces showcasing emerging artists is an encouraging gesture in an area that an increasing amount of young people are calling home. The art gallery at Hillsborough Community College's Ybor campus is a perfect example of this, which makes sense — it’s a gallery located in an educational institution. Their 43rd Annual Juried Student Art Exhibition, up through this Wednesday, proudly shows off the students that learn under the HCC umbrella.
