RESTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--MAXIMUS (NYSE: MMS), a leading provider of government services worldwide, announced today that several case studies highlighting the Company's Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) and Business Process Management (BPM) solutions were recently featured in the Gartner research report, "Use BPM to Drive Revenue, Not Just Efficiency."

The report provides high-maturity case studies as examples of how the real-time process visibility, accountability and agility capabilities of BPM can help organizations increase both cost-efficiency and revenue to drive business operations excellence. MAXIMUS BPM solutions allow government agencies increased and real-time visibility into the progression of individual transactions or cases in health and human services programs.

"The ability to view our program operations as formal process models is one of the reasons that many government agencies partner with MAXIMUS to operate their public programs. We bring proprietary models that help programs run more effectively in order to achieve outcomes that matter to our customers," commented MAXIMUS President and CEO Richard A. Montoni.

MAXIMUS uses data generated by its BPM tools to maintain the optimal staffing and resource levels needed to deliver required customer service levels for its government clients. Managing staffing spend against revenue and client requirements has become a key market differentiator for the Company, enabling it to secure government contracts for the administration of health and human services programs, as well as reliably and consistently plan for future growth.
