

Best of the Best!

Newmont CC&V employees were awarded the Colorado Mining Association's "Best of the Best" Environmental Stewardship Award for the Cresson Project in Cripple Creek & Victor, Colorado!

At an awards ceremony held February 21st, during the 119th annual National Western Mining Conference and Exhibition in Denver, the Colorado Mining Association (CMA) honored winners of the Environmental Stewardship and Pollution Prevention Awards for 2016. And for the second straight year, Newmont's CC&V Mine took the top "Best of Best" award for its leadership in recycling and repurposing materials used by the operation.

CMA President Stan Dempsey, Jr. congratulated the company and its employees stating "Cripple Creek and Victor's Cresson Project stands as a wonderful example of a modern mining operation developing and implementing innovative and responsible environmental practices."

In addition, the mine's work with the Young Environmental Stewards (YES) program to establish small mammal and bird habitat on reclaimed land also was noteworthy. CMA commented that "The YES program represents an outstanding example of community engagement and youth environmental education."
