Leading Healthcare Suppliers Sign Definitive Agreement Creating Internet-based Health Exchange

August 3, 2000

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Aug. 3, 2000--Leading healthcare suppliers AmeriSource Health Corporation (NYSE: AAS), Cardinal Health, Inc. (NYSE: CAH), Fisher Scientific International Inc. (NYSE: FSH), and McKesson HBOC, Inc. (NYSE: MCK) announced today they have signed a definitive agreement forming a new joint venture that will operate as an independent, Internet-based, business-to-business electronic health exchange. The soon-to-be named company will be based in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

The companies originally announced their plan for the health exchange in April. Recently, they named David M. Hurley as chief executive officer and a director of the new venture. Hurley, 41, is former president and chief executive officer of Novartis Corporation's Geneva Pharmaceuticals.

Hurley will lead the implementation of the new company, the rapid formation of its management team and the finalization of the company's business plan.

The new company will offer a centralized and standardized approach and Internet clearinghouse for the many different industry processes in use today to classify, contract for and track the delivery of pharmaceutical, medical-surgical and laboratory products. It will be a commercially neutral source for healthcare product and contract information that will help streamline America's healthcare supply chain.

“Our priority will be to create a unique 'e-hub' that makes the movement of information along the supply chain more efficient than it has ever been,” Hurley said. “This venture is backed by a number of leading healthcare companies involved and highly experienced in the logistics necessary to supply America's hospitals, pharmacies and other sites of care. We have the commitment, the resources, the physical infrastructure and the relationships to bring tremendous value to caregivers and the manufacturers and distributors who serve them.”
