“Chad’s background developing modern infrastructure systems for e-commerce and technology organizations will be a significant asset as we continually innovate our platforms to deliver an unparalleled online shopping experience for our customers,” said Jeremy Delinsky, chief technology officer, Wayfair. “We are delighted to welcome Chad on board to lead our infrastructure and security teams, and we look forward to his contributions and insights.”

Before joining Wayfair, Ghosn led the infrastructure team at Expedia Inc., where he spearheaded the modernization of the company's network and computer environments. Prior to his role at Expedia, Ghosn spent more than a decade at Dell Inc., driving system stability and innovation with infrastructure leadership positions. Previously, he led network operations for Kaiser Permanente.

"I am thrilled to join an innovative, forward-thinking e-commerce company," added Ghosn. "Wayfair's advanced technologies and streamlined online experience set a strong foundation for further infrastructure development opportunities. As Wayfair continues to innovate and grow at such a rapid pace, I look forward to helping build and strengthen the company's infrastructure system to meet increasing IT expansion needs."

Ghosn holds an M.S. in Management Information Systems from St. Mary's University in San Antonio, and a B.A. in Computer Information Systems from California State University, Los Angeles. He served in the U.S. Air Force following graduation for four years.
