Restb.ai brings AI and computer vision tech to 17 MLSs, reaching 151,500 new members, now accessible by nearly three-quarters of a million Realtors in the U.S.

2024-09-11

DALLAS, Sept. 11, 2024 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- In its continuous efforts to bring cutting-edge AI and computer vision tools to real estate agents and brokerages throughout North America, Restb.ai, real estate's leading AI-powered computer vision solutions provider, announced today the implementation of its technology in 17 new Multiple Listing Services during the first half of 2024.

Restb.ai's advanced technology reaches 151,500 new members through these MLSs, bringing the total number of MLS members with access to its AI-enabled tools in the U.S. to 720,000 – reaching more than half of the Realtors in America.

"These MLSs as technology leaders in real estate are demonstrating their commitment to providing innovative solutions to help their members better serve their clients," said Dominik Pogorzelski, General Manager MLS. "This new tech they are deploying will help sellers sell homes faster and help buyers better find the home that matches their personal needs, wants and desires," he added.

Pogorzelski said that "hundreds of thousands of real estate agents and brokers can now leverage the magic of Restb.ai computer vision to create richer and more complete property listings."

The MLS making Restb.ai technology available to agents and brokers include:

NTREIS (North Texas Real Estate Information Systems): One of the largest MLSs in the United States, NTREIS
