About Serabi Gold Plc

Serabi Gold plc is a gold exploration and production company involved in the evaluation and development of gold deposits in Brazil. The company's primary interests are its 100% owned Palito Mining Complex and the Coringa Gold Project, both located in the Tapajos region of northern Brazil. The Company has been producing gold since continuously since 2013 and planned production of 38,000-40,000 ounces for 2024 is projected to be expanded to an annual rate of over 60,000 ounces over the coming two years. The Tapajos region, which encompasses an area of about 100,000 square kilometres (350 km by 300 km) in southwest Para State, Brazil, is located approximately 1,300 km southwest from the state capital, Belem. Artisanal miners ("garimpeiros") are understood to have extracted up to 30 million ounces of gold there since the 1970s, mostly from alluvial and surface weathered bedrock deposits representing generally only the top 20 to 30 metres. It is reported to be the world's third largest alluvial gold field and the Company believes that the region, with significant mineral potential below the artisanal operation, is a major, under-explored mineral province.
