Texas Association of REALTORS Makes Forms Available to Members via Dotloop

CINCINNATI, May 10, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Dotloop, a leading platform for simplifying the real estate buying and selling process, today announced that it has reached a new agreement with the Texas Association of REALTORS® (TAR). Starting May 10, all of TAR's forms will be available in the dotloop® document library for the more than 100,000 members of the association.

Now, TAR's members can easily access their forms directly in dotloop's platform to more efficiently complete, share and sign documents, and monitor and manage entire real estate transactions from start to close. There is no cost for the members of TAR to access their forms or manage their transactions through dotloop.

"We are very pleased to offer the 100,000 members of TAR easy access to their forms in dotloop," said Austin Allison, founder and general manager of dotloop. "Home buyers' expectations have dramatically changed as technology has evolved, and with the technology provided by dotloop, members of TAR will be able to efficiently move their transactions along."

Dotloop's agreement with TAR is the latest example of the momentum the company has achieved with associations and MLSs. To date, nearly 100 associations and MLSs have made their forms available via dotloop to give their members an easier, more secure way to grow their businesses and work efficiently with everyone involved in a transaction.

"We are excited to have access to TAR forms directly in the dotloop platform to conduct transactions," said Katie Sharp, senior administrative manager of Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices Texas Realty. "Dotloop has made the real estate process more efficient for us, improving communication and saving our staff and agents dozens of hours each week. Getting access to TAR forms is an integral step in this process."
