

DFIN Announces Founding Partnership of Upcoming Financial Times Future of Asset Management Summit in New York City

September 09, 2019

Asset and wealth management leaders come together to explore innovations, technology disruptors, critical factors driving future of industry

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Donnelley Financial Solutions (NYSE: DFIN), a leading global risk and compliance company, announced its founding partnership of the Financial Times' inaugural Future of Asset Management Summit on September 18 in New York City, where leaders will examine the innovations that are disrupting and reshaping the sector today.

The asset and wealth management industry is in the midst of unprecedented change, as consolidation, demographic shifts, a changing distribution landscape, new regulations and technological disruptors revolutionize the business.

"With technology pushing the investment landscape forward, businesses are looking for cost effective solutions that will optimize their operating models to keep up with an accelerating pace of change," said Eric Johnson, president, Global Investment Markets at DFIN. "We view this as a global opportunity to counsel our clients on managing regulation requirements and meeting investor needs on a broader scale."

These continuous changes are driving a much-needed digital revolution affecting the entire investment market ecosystem, forcing the need for new efficiencies and compelling regulatory bodies and investment companies to change their behaviors.

"We are delighted to bring together key leaders in the asset and wealth management field to spotlight expert opinions about the industry's future – an exciting moment to uncover innovative approaches, business models and critical tools that will drive success in the next five to ten years," said Angela Mackay, Managing Director, Asia Pacific, Financial Times and Global Publisher, FT Live.

DFIN provides software and services to investment management businesses, including mutual funds, hedge and alternative investment funds, insurance companies and overseas investment structures for collective investments. The company also provides products to third-party service providers and custodians who support investment managers, and sells products and distribution services to broker networks and financial advisors.
